NATION'S MOST BEAUTIFUL THEATRE HAS SUPER FILM

"What an event is the most comfortable theatre in the city," said William Randolph Hearst, president of the Cosmopolitan Corporation, when he approved the plan for the new home of Cosmopolitan Productions. "It is the most comfortable theatre in the city," said Hearst, "and it is the most comfortable theatre in the city." With this in mind, Hearst has decided to build what has been described as the most comfortable playhouse in the metropolitan area.

that has been a revelation to New York playgoers. The orchestra pit is of three levels, with a huge stage of colonial architecture, adorned, slightly, by original treatment under Mr. Erwin's hands. Two panels on either side of the curtain reveal Massey Taylor in various scenes from "The Old New York," the opening attraction at the new house. The portrait prints of Miss Davies were made by Niall Scott-Gallagher, an eminent portrait painter who has painted Tom Clark, Lenore Ulrich, Mrs. John Vanamey, Cathleen Vanover, and many other persons of prominence.

From the ceiling of the theatre a great chandelier is suspended. This chandelier is said to be the finest and most magnificent ever designed for a theatre. It weighs thirty-two feet in diameter and forty feet in height and measures 8,000 pounds. It contains 12,528 individual glass crystals and 440 individual electric lights. Mr. Erwin designed it and it was executed by Tiffany.

An unusual feature of the Cosmopolitan Theatre are the private boxes, shown in the accompanying illustration. These boxes are set in the walls above the balcony and are the most unique ever designed for a theatre. The only access to them being through the medium of a private, self-controlled elevator, one of which is stationed on either side of the theatre and leads directly to the box.

Clarence Hay Takes Lawrence Place at Beaver Pond, Beverly, Betty Alden Reports

By BETTY ALDEN.
Lawrence's reputation as a "gladiator" is being continued by his son, Clarence Hay, who is making another long stay at Beaver Pond, Beverly. Lawrence, who was a collector of rare antiques, gathered during his world wanderings.

He and Mrs. Clarence I. Hay have leased Mr. Lawrence's place at Beaver Pond, Beverly. They're taking up their residence there early next month, planning to remain through the Fall.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Hay (Alice Appleton) was of the ancestral party which went over to England last season, leaving a house north of London for the hunting season. In the group of sports-people were Mr. and Mrs. Bayard, the latter's father, Herbert M. Bayard, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Perkins (Lelia).

A CRACK polo player is Captain Philip H. Sherwood, who plays with the Dedham team along with Bobby Herriek, Jr., Robert May, Lethrop M. West and Philip Salomonson. Mr. Hay, who was in Mexico during the party, joined them there later on the other side.

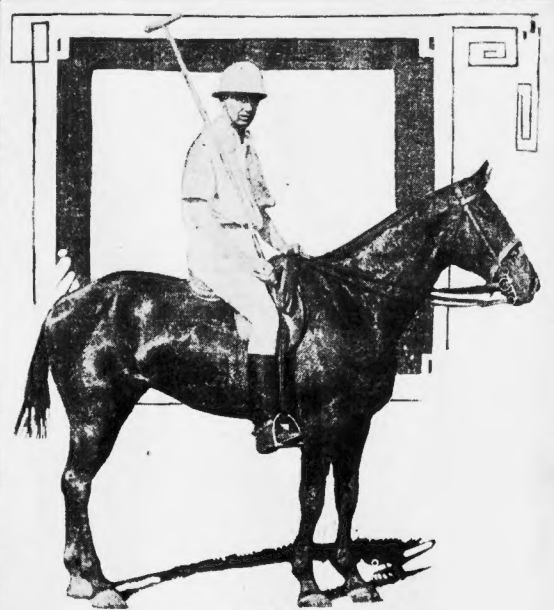

Mrs. Hay is the daughter of the Prince of Apostles of "Anglo-American" Farm, Ipswich, where the Hay family have been staying for some time.

Society was said to hear last year that Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood—the latter was formerly Elsie Burr—were to make their home in Boston after a prolonged absence in the Philippines.

This summer the Sherwoods have joined the city's summer married set at Nahant, where the venerable daughter of the I. Tucker Burr was largely responsible for the forming of John Law's art club. Mr. and Mrs. Burr, by the way, joined the Episcopal church early in the season, while their other daughter, Miss Barbara Burr, seems as devoted as ever to her work in New York.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT GOLD SHAW of Boston were at the Newport concert on Saturday at dinner the other evening in connection with the tennis match which played there. Another dinner hostess was Mrs. Howard Cushing, who was a wide circle of friends in the Hub.

MRS. GEORGE VON L. MEYER, Jr. (Frances Salomonson) and her small family have returned to Hamilton after a month's visit with Mrs. von Meyer's mother, Mrs. Philip L. Salomonson, at West Chop. Mrs. von Meyer, Sr., is now abroad, dividing her time between visits with her son-in-law and daughter, Signor and Signora Brambilla, at Rome, and another son-in-law and daughter, Commander and Mrs. C. R. R. Rogers, at The Hedges.

Mrs. Meyer is returning next month to "Rockmole Farm," her Hamilton place.

RETURNING from Europe a short time ago was Maxwell Norman, who is now occupying his estate at Hamilton.

Harbor Full of Detours, Says Light Swimmer

Mike Wrenn of Lowell Proves a Champion in His First Salt Water Contest

They should have traffic cops in the harbor. Mike Wrenn said so, and Mike should know. He's a traffic director in Postoffice square, Lowell, which isn't near the harbor, but that's neither here nor there. Mike was in that famous Light swim a week ago. He took his Sunday off and put his bathing suit on. He never had been in salt water before and he wasn't used to currents. He paddled all around the harbor, covering enough ground, as you might say, to tread upon Cape Cod. His pilots didn't know the way, and the big fellow lost a real chance to get that cup. He was in the water six hours and forty minutes, and going around all the time. He took the long way around all the islands, and thought the pond was all detours. Next time he promises to go down to the light and back to show that he can. He has splashed along for ten hours and thirty-six minutes in the native Merrimack River, and then quit to go to work. Officer Wrenn used to be a lifeguard in the Merrimack, and when he quit all the kids in that section of the world tried to make him return to the job. He worked last Saturday night until 10 o'clock, had his little dip Sunday and was back on the traffic job Monday morning. Now he's willing to swim all the swimmers in the world any Sunday, anywhere within any distance of Lowell.

FIRPO'S Foe NEAR DEATH AFTER BOUT

Jack Malone to Battle Delaney

SIGNED FOR WILSON SHOW

New York, Aug. 18.—Jack Malone, of St. Paul, Minn., who is to meet Jack Delaney, of Bridgeport, in a special bout of ten rounds, on the same card with the championship match between Johnny Wilson and Harry Greb, at the Polo Grounds on August 31, will arrive in New York on Monday to finish his training.

The Malone-Delaney match is one of the most important contests looked in a long time and has caused unusual interest and speculation, especially among managers, fighters, and boxing promoters. Both have youth, skill and speed and both have been proclaimed coming champions.

Jack Malone is a protégé of Mike Gibbons of St. Paul. Gibbons has taught Malone all of his tricks and Malone has demonstrated in many battles that he is an apt pupil.

Nat Pendleton to Do His Stuff in the Movies

Nat Pendleton, well known professional wrestler, has yielded to the call of the silent drama, or rather has returned to its fold—for he is known that some ten years ago Nat was a prominent member of Arthur Johnson's company at Lubin's Philadelphia film factory. He played several juvenile leads and assisted Johnson as director.

The Cosmopolitan Film Company has signed Pendleton in connection with "Yolanda," starring Marion Davies. As a bold and brawny Pendleton brings his athletic skills and wrestling line to play. It was partly on account of Pendleton's inability to force Ed "Strangler" Lewis into a match for the professional title of world's champion that he decided to re-enter pictures.

Langford Has Iron in Fist; Tar Baby Now a Tailor

The hotly right hand which has landed many a hard blow on white and black alike, is now pressing the wrinkles of white and black alike.

Sam Langford, Boston's veteran negro pugilist, is running a tailor shop in El Paso, Texas. Sam doesn't claim to be a regular tailor, but he says his left eye is still good and his right hand strong enough to sew. In addition, it is his hope for a match in El Paso, Okla., on Labor Day.

"If I win, I might get out of the ring for good, if the pressing business gets better," he said.

Opponent Dying

Downey Is Second Man Injured by Firpo

Downey is the second man to be knocked into a hospital by Firpo. About a year ago Firpo beat Bill Brennan and then he was in a New York hospital for a week. At one time a concussion of the brain was threatened.

Brennan had twice faced Downey and escaped injury which indicates the terrific hitting power of the man from Argentina. Since his fight with Firpo, Brennan has never stepped into a ring and probably never will. It is said he may die.

BRINGING UP FATHER

What Jiggs Told Her

By George McManus

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

THE foreign quotas in this country are filling up so rapidly that a lot of immigrants are swimming in the United States.

A RUSSIAN musician swam into New York Harbor last week with a violin strapped to his back. It's a good thing he didn't play the piano.

SWIMMING across the Atlantic is the cheapest form of transportation, but you have a hard job bringing your furniture with you.

STILL, one guy brought his wife with him and let her carry the trunk.

HE realized she might drown, but he knew the trunk would float.

IF she started arguing with him in the middle of the ocean and got herself full of sea sickness, it wouldn't be his fault, it would be hers to keep her mouth closed.

ONE woman was half way across the ocean when she remembered she'd forgotten to turn the gas on. So she had to swim all the way back ashore.

SHE came over by herself. She said the children were sick in Russia and as soon as they learned how to swim she was going to send for them.

SHE had ten altogether and she figured that at least half of them ought to make it all right.

SHE'S an immigrant and can't count, but that won't bother her. She'll be down at the beach with an adding machine.

IT takes about three weeks to swim from Liverpool to New York, so you wouldn't get much rest at night, unless you sleep with your mouth shut. Any other suffering with asthma would be out of luck.

SWIMMERS can do all the cooking they want on the way over. If there's no danger of starting any forest fires.

THERE'S one thing about making the trip this way, you don't have to put up with any detours.

AND it's not necessary to carry any road maps to help you get lost.

OF course the ocean belongs to you as much as it does to any one else, but swimmers should be considerate and give transatlantic liners the right of way.

WHEN you see one coming, get over and give it half the water, and be a hog.

IF you're swimming from England to New York, you have to go to San Francisco and then start through the Panama Canal because the route are better.

FOREIGNERS swimming to this country should always cable their relatives here when they're leaving so that they can be down to the beach to meet you.

AND above all, don't neglect to let them know what wave you are coming in on.

ONCE-OVERS

By Herriman

BEWARE OF TOO MUCH "PUSH"

How often it happens that the person who makes the most effort to meet you are the ones whom you have least desire to meet. And vice versa, too much effort to meet certain other persons, works really against you.

Demagogue this often at a summer resort.

If there are persons at the place where you are spending your leisure whom you are anxious to meet, do not force yourself upon them.

If conditions shape themselves to bring you together, in a natural way, well and good; but if you really want these persons to think your acquaintance is worth while, do not crowd yourself into their circle.

Make yourself the sort of person that is interesting and to whom at social gatherings and your light will not long remain under a bushel, for the better people will find you out and receive you accordingly.

Useless Facts

Leader once swam across the Atlantic, but was unable to keep his appointment with his lady friend because he left his bicycle on the other side.

George Washington surprised the Hessians by rowing across the Delaware, but if there was a bridge he could have accomplished the same result with far less effort.

One day last winter I went to the store. On my way home I saw a great big slide, so I thought I would take a slide. On doing so I imagine my embarrassment when I fell down and spilled a big bag of bones. As I sat there picking them up a bunch of fellows were standing in the doorway across the street, laughing at me.

Liza had been robbed and was told by the judge to explain to the court the circumstances of the case.

"Wal, Judge, yer honor," she said, "on this particular day, of you all remembers, there was a big Democrat parade goin' on. I was breakin' out with winter watchin' 'em goin' by when this buck smokes up bolin' me, an' alone the winter down on mah neck an' robs me."

"Do you mean to tell this court, that with a big Democratic parade going by and all the people watching it down on the street, you let this man rob you without making an outcry?"

"She's an awful o' murther, Judge—but do you all think ah wanted them Democrats to think ah was cheerin' them?"

Telephone Company Must Give Us Better Service

The telephone company has won the strike. Whether it deserved to win the strike or did not deserve to win it, we express no opinion. But it has won the strike. Therefore, as soon as it has readjusted itself to the new situation, it will be held responsible by the public for the service.

The girls lost the strike because the public held the girls responsible for bad service, and were entirely out of sympathy with the demands of those whom they believed to be inefficient and unwilling to assume a responsibility which belonged to their jobs.

It ought to be said in justice to the striking girls that they have admitted the bad service during the last several years, but they denied that the responsibility is to be laid at the door of the union. They asserted that the conditions against which they struck were largely responsible. Miss O'Connor has insisted that the girls foolishly took responsibility during their employment when they should have placed it upon the company.

Of course, the company denies all this. Whatever the truth may be, the service now must be improved. In Boston, at least, the service is just as bad as it was during the strike. The public does not ask impossible things of the company, but it does ask for a restoration of service—the resumption of service that we once had. That at least is possible. Art and science do not go backward. We urge the company to understand that this will be a Partisan victory if they do not appreciate the necessity of promptly restoring good service. When we say good service, we mean a great deal better service than we had before the strike.

Boys Who Steal Fruit

Hard to Know How to Deal With Healthy, Mischief Loving Youngsters

We have received the following letter concerning boys who steal fruit:

The headline of yesterday was headed "Lend Us Your Eyes and Your Ears," and in return you promised to lend us your voice. I would ask your voice to see if you cannot stop the vandalism of young Americans.

Many of us who live in the suburbs have in our back yards apple, pear and cherry trees, and we try to fertilize and spray in the hope of having some fruit for the winter, and as the trees blossom and the fruit commences to set we are happy and proud of our labor, but no sooner than the fruit is half ripe the young boys and girls not only steal the fruit from the trees but they break the branches in order to reach the higher fruit. This has been so aggravating that many of my neighbors have chopped their fruit trees down to keep the young vandals away. If the Mrs. tries to drive them away she gets cursed at and half-ripe apples and pears thrown at her.

It is difficult to decide what ought to be done to healthy boys who steal fruit. Healthy boys have stolen fruit ever since Adam stole the apple in the Garden of Eden.

One thing is certain, that we do not want to give boys who steal fruit from a neighbor's orchard a criminal record; at least, we do not want to give them a criminal record until good boys stop stealing fruit and only bad boys continue to steal it. Boys today who steal fruit do so rather for mischief and adventure than for the purpose of cheating. There is no moral turpitude in the act.

On the other hand, we quite appreciate the exasperation of our correspondent and of those who own fruit trees, who care for them and who anticipate the enjoyment of their fruit.

One of the problems of lowering the cost of living is the utilization of all spare land for the production of fruit. Fruit is a valuable part of our food. We ought to stimulate its growth in every yard where those who own land are disposed to have fruit trees. We ought not to discourage them by permitting the vandalism of boys.

We once knew a lady in Dorchester who stopped fruit stealing by waiting until she found out who the boys were who stole her fruit and then by going to the house of each boy with a basket of fruit and giving it to them, in the presence of their parents, with a smile of hearty good will, but explaining to the astonished and crestfallen boy that she was perfectly willing that he should have the fruit that fell on the ground, but that he should not try to knock the fruit off the trees and climb the trees, for that injured the trees and reduced their productivity for all.

She also said that when she came to pick the fruit, if they came around they could have whatever they thought was their share. It is needless to say that none of the decent boys bothered that fruit orchard again for any purpose.

We should like to have those who know boys and who have some experience with their discipline, and who sympathize with the spirit of mischief and adventure which all boys should have, if they are going to lead civilization onward, communicate to us their ideas of the way to meet the difficulty presented by our irate owner of a fruit orchard.

Wise Old England

She Knows When to Say No

When a thing is really important to England, you don't get much in the way of argument out of that wise old country. Concerning the heavy fortifying of Singapore as a naval base, a step aimed STRAIGHT AT JAPAN, as everybody knows, England says: "Nothing would be gained by discussing this with Japan." She also says it was understood at the Washington conference that she reserved the right to do as she pleased about Singapore.

If this nation had been represented by men as able as the English the United States would have reserved the right to do as it pleased about Guam. And if the United States had done the right thing there, establishing the greatest submarine and flying machine base in the world, she would have had no need to worry about Asia. We'll pay well some day for all our muzzling "Love-and-trust-everybody" sentimentality. You can't run a great country like a girls' boarding school.

MANY TRACK BETS AT PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Parisians, reformed by American and English tourists, paid almost one million francs in entrance fees for the Grand Prix race today and wagered more than thirteen million francs on the day's events.

Official figures show the entrance receipts as $38,241 francs and the amounts wagered as $115,645 francs.

Young Couple In Need Helping Hand Editor: My husband just came out of the hospital a short time ago and went to work. Now he has been laid off. Both of us are in great need of clothing. We are both nineteen years old and wear size 38. We also have a little six-month-old boy who is in need of clothes. MRS. T. C.

Invalid Supports Family Helping Hand Editor: I am a woman in poor health, trying to support a boy of twelve and a husband who lost his arm last September and has not worked since, as no one seems to want a cripple. I am able to work only three days a week, which doesn't go a great way toward paying rent and buying food for three. I cannot buy any clothes for myself, and I need some badly, size 38. MRS. L. M.

Kitten Offered Helping Hand Editor: I have a nice little black and white kitten about five months old, housebroken and gentle, that I would be glad to give to someone who would give it a good home. I have another cat and four small kittens, so cannot keep them all. E. B. L. Your offer will be held for reply.

Veteran Needs Clothes Helping Hand Editor: If someone has some clothes for a man who did his share across and got gassed he would like some. He has one suit, which is all worn out and patched. Soon, I'm afraid, he will have to go to work in a barrel. We are living with a friend, and we pay half the expenses, and it takes all Dada can earn to meet expenses, and feed Dada and myself. None of us have had any clothes this year, but if someone has some for a man and a baby I won't get jealous. He is just a medium man, wears size 14½ neckband on his shirt and 6½ shoes, and an old suit would do, as long as he won't have to wear a barrel to church and work. He can't work steadily so he is still affected from the gas. A HERO'S WIFE.

Deserving People Helping Hand Editor: Please send me the address of A. F. D. Mrs. C. M. C. wrote me last week that she had a girl who was left with her when the father disappeared. She has mothered the little one, but they are in straitened circumstances now. Please, very, very, I have done what little I could, but the boy has no clothes for school. He is ten years old. Surely some kind soul will help them. They are fine, deserving people. MRS. L. B. S.

Invalid Needs Coat Helping Hand Editor: My son is sick with tuberculosis in the hospital in England. He has been out of work for almost a year, and has a wife and four small children. He is getting better, and the doctor has been home the first of September. He has to have a new coat and hat, and I have no money to buy them. I am an old woman and have been in the hospital myself with pneumonia, which has left me lame. I work, but get very small pay. That it does not keep me. He asked me if I could get him some Range for Mrs. E. J. J. Helping Hand Editor: I saw in last night's paper that Mrs. E. J. J. wants a stove. I have a nice kitchen range which she can have if that is what she wants. It needs a new lining, but otherwise is a fine cooker.

THREE WILLS AND BUT A SINGLE WAY

MUCH cry and little wool," as the man-said when he sheared his hogs.

The new law in the American Ruhr isn't ended by a long shot. After all, a sudden composition of differences by miners and operators is more than experience should expect.

Neither labor nor feudalism was ever yet known to yield summary rights without a bitter struggle.

According to President Lewis, who refuses anything but a book, line and sinker settlement, the high lords of anthracite have tied strings all over their proposition for the mutual abandonment of the check-off system.

For instance, they'll cease deducting from wages only so far as the laws of Pennsylvania permit. Also, miners must consent not to strike if pay envelopes are left intact by both sides.

Meanwhile, we have administration assurance that the country shan't suffer another hard fuel shortage. Of three wills, two must give way. Which shall it be?

All for the Benefit of Chanticleer Naval limitation is all but an actuality. The treaty is unanimously accepted and merely awaits necessary signatures.

A pyrrhic victory for peace, so long as nations continue to crowd oceans and air with flying dreadnaughts and winged destroyers.

If France had half as many bombing squadrons, or Britain double her present aerial forces, a single arbitrary opinion wouldn't rule the destiny of Europe.

Chanticleer's spurs aren't shortened by a general reduction of fleets. That cock of the walk doesn't swag the seat.

The Gaul is a land fighter. John Bull for once missed a bet at Washington. He keeps his word, but would far rather keep building cruisers.

Folk Who Don't Know When to Quit Chancellor Stresemann starts well. The magnates don't quite approve of his cabinet or entourage over some of his initial policies. Still, especially, resents proposed tax reforms.

The new minister of finance isn't a respecter of vested interests.

Communism wines under a stronger hand than Cuno's. More riots, but less intense. The Republic's pressing internal problems are improvement of the mark and an increased food supply.

Neither prospect of starvation nor financial collapse lessens the grim stubbornness of passive resistance. Just or wrong, Germany at least takes her punishment unflinchingly.

Free State troops arrest De Valera. Somebody else who doesn't know when to quit.

Henry Ford Changes His Mind Henry Ford, however, changes his mind.

He means to pay for advertising next year. The car that hitherto sold by word-of-mouth reputation will be exploited in newspapers and magazines at the tune of seven million dollars.

A two million output can't be indefinitely maintained without incessant publicity.

Shrewd concern leaves the soundest method of promotion solely to competitors. Henry doesn't intend to be caught napping.

Great news for publishers, but lay readers are more likely to find thrills in the announcement that Funk and Wagnall will shortly issue a book by Allen Benson, which discloses an amazing alteration in several of Ford's strongest sentiments.

According to rumor, he forecasts an immediate continental smash-up from which we can't escape, and advises America to trade in and strike the first blow.

The Dearborn Independent, it is claimed, has delivered final attacks upon the Jews for fear that the stirring of prejudice may inspire a universal wave of anti-Semitism.

Even millionsaire live to learn—something.

Microscope Versus Silver Images Two Italian pathologists have isolated the germ of scarlet fever—a discovery hardly less portentous than diphtheria's serum.

Many more youngsters in this generation will grow to manhood than survived before Pasteur started to wonder if humans weren't subject to the same kind of blights as grapes.

A far call from the sacerdotal quackery of India, which uses the eyebrows and fingernails of one child to cure the smallpox of another, and offers six little silver images to propitiate the smallpox goddess.

Saving the world for democracy may not be feasible, but bringing enlightenment to heathens is.

Top-Dogs Snatch the Best Bones Three hundred and eighty-seven thousand persons will perish of famine in Turkestan. Their horse herds have vanished, and sheep folds are gone.

Very sad, you'll say, and proceed to glance over fashion notes or baseball scores.

About one American in ten knows Turkestan's location. Consequently, word that Mars hasn't a crust would be almost as disturbing to Yankee equanimity.

Jugo-Slavia, among the nations that haven't begun to liquidate war loans, and therefore a proper theme of discussion for Oshkosh and painted post taxpayers, is ripping at the seam.

Boundary lines are easily shifted on paper. Traditional distrust, racial antipathies, religious canons and jealous ambitions don't appear on the map. Intrigue and theory engineered several hopeless bungles at Versailles, but none so fatuous as this Balkan mess.

Serbia is accused of overriding the opportunities and aspirations of non-Serbs. Top-dogs always take first gnaw at every bone.
